Faith, Interfaith, Freedom: February Conference

By Hal W. French

"Faith, Interfaith and Freedom." That's the theme of our IARF conference in Hilton Head, S.C. February 3-5. Sounds pretty comprehensive, doesn't it? Can we deliver transcendence in a weekend? Well, that's a tall order, but consider some items on our program that might give you a measure of enlightenment at least!

We have three plenary sessions on Saturday, with Kay Lindahl doing a workshop on Sacred Listening, Waleed El-Ansary speaking on Islam and Interfaith, and Peter Morales, presenting as President of the UUA.

Consider just a few other highlights: a Friday evening concert by a women's a capella choir from the University of South Carolina, yoga sessions each morning for the get up and get going people, three worship services, three circle group sessions to get you acquainted with each other, two sessions by scholars sharing insights from their latest books, a meditation session, a report on persecution of Baha'is in Iran, a panel on international outreach, plus reports on IARF activities internationally.

And for Saturday evening we have a special invitation from the Bluffton UU congregation nearby to a reception, followed by a Gullah presentation, to give you a taste of a significant element of Low Country history and culture.

Conference, continued.

All of this takes place at the Hilton Oceanfront Hotel, a really nice facility where I've hosted three Asian Studies conferences. The nice people there will start us off with a sumptuous welcome reception on Friday. And whatever the weather is in February in coastal South Carolina in February, it will probably be better than where you live! Check out the hotel's web site.

You'll be attending one of a number of special programs around the world sponsored by the United Nations World Interfaith Harmony Week. The South Carolina Interfaith Partnership will cooperate with us in promoting this conference, as will PICNA (Peace and Integration Council of North America), so the welcome mat is out for you. Look for the registration form and schedule at the end of this newsletter. ❖

EDITOR'S NOTE: At my request, two of the keynote presenters have each provided a question that will be raised by their talks. Waleed el-Ansary offers, "What is the Quranic doctrine of the universality of revelation, and what does it imply for interreligious dialogue?" Kay Lindahl submits, "How does the quality of your listening impact the future?" ❖

Japan Chapter Tour

By Richard Kellaway and Doris Hunter

On October 20th a delegation of 23 members of the Japanese Chapter of the IARF arrived in Washington, D.C. All are members of Rissho Kosei Kai (RKK), a modern Buddhist movement. In DC they visited All Souls Church. Shortly after the bombing of Hiroshima in 1945, the minister, A. Powell Davies, called on his congregation to provide assistance to the survivors. Large quantities of goods were sent to the school children of that devastated city. In return the children sent more than forty drawings to the church. They remained there until last spring when the current minister, Rob Hardies, returned the originals to Hiroshima. The group members expressed their thanks to him and the congregation and viewed reproductions of the drawings. After touring the city, at the Universalist National Memorial Church they met IARF supporters including Hal French, up from SC, and to hear Mrs. Sueko Hada, a survivor of the nuclear blast, tell of her experiences. They also met Ms. Shizumi Manale, who is making a film of the story.

On Saturday, the group moved to Boston, where the members were greeted by Rev. Eric Cherry, Director of the UUA Office of International Resources. They toured the headquarters of our Association, and President Morales greeted them, along with members of the UUA Board and staff members of the International Office and members of the Boston Chapter of the IARF.

The following day, a Sunday, we led the Japanese delegation to the grave sites of Rev. Dana Greeley in Concord and Dr. Natalie Gullbrandsen in Beverly. The delegation leader, Rev. Sakai, gave prayers honoring their dedication to interfaith understanding and cooperation. Flowers were placed on their graves, a gracious tribute to the lasting friendship between the Japan Chapter of the IARF and our Unitarian Universalist Association.

The group moved to Fairhaven, MA, in the afternoon. There they visited the home and museum of John Manjiro, the first Japanese person to live in the United States. In the 1840's he was rescued by William Whitfield, Captain of a Fairhaven whaling ship. Whitfield brought him home to live, since any contact with

India: Human Rights Education Project

By Thomas Mathew

India is a country where religion is an inalienable part of day-to-day life, and freedom of religion is guaranteed under the constitution to every citizen. In spite of the rapid progress in the area of safeguarding human rights in India, contemporary evidence points to abject denial of the fundamental freedom of religion and faith in many parts of the country. Religious fundamentalism has made life miserable and intolerable for many individuals belonging to minority religious faiths and Dalit communities.

In this regard, IARF South Asia (SACC) has been a premier non-governmental organization in educating the youth about human rights, especially regarding Universal Declaration of Human Rights (UDHR) and the Declaration on the Elimination of All Forms of Intolerance and Discrimination Based on Religion or Belief (DEIDRB). The work of IARF has been well appreciated and encouraged from all corners of Indian civil society. IARF SACC has been conducting Human Rights Education (HRE) programs among the youth in different parts of India.

The first phase of the HRE project (August 2005 to December 2007) was a great success in India and Bangladesh in spite of many challenges faced by the organization. In the course of the first phase, 55 HRE workshops were organized in India and 8 in Bangladesh. . The two-day human rights education workshops were carried out using a well-designed and structured learning process with six different sessions.

During the second phase, from August 2008 to August 2009, IARF SACC conducted 25 human rights workshops in India. 1172 participants from all over India including North East India, Kashmir, and Gujarat were trained in these HRE workshops. Twenty-four workshops were organized in the third phase

dignity*

(August 2010 -August 2011)
for youth from India and abroad to receive training on the UDHR and the DEIDRB.
The actual participants always exceeded the expected numbers. The project aimed at training 650-700 participants, but 1145 persons actually participated.

India now has a large pool of educated youth who can work as catalysts in upholding human dignity and ensuring religious freedom of all people in India. The 33rd

World Congress of IARF, held at Kochi, India, September 4-7, 2010, attracted young adults from various parts of the globe. Most of the youth were attracted to the IARF through the HRE project.

Religious strife and tension have become a common occurrence, and intolerance towards other religions is gradually increasing. It is urgent and absolutely imperative for a non-governmental organization like IARF SACC to carry on the noble task of imparting knowledge of the UDHR and the DEIDRB. Through the HRE programs, participants are exposed to a new world of information about human dignity and religious freedom

--- the path to peace.

These attempts help to mold more peace makers to save humanity in this divided world. ❖

New Book on Women's Spiritual Leadership

Kay Lindahl, one of our chapter advisors, has launched a new book this month. She is the co-editor of Women, Spirituality and Transformative Leadership: Where Grace Meets Power, published by SkyLight Paths Publishing. Kay says that the book is available on Amazon.com as of November 1, and will play a part in "mak[ing] women's spiritual leadership more visible in the cultural conversation." We can look forward to participating with Kay in "sacred listening" at our conference in February. ❖ foreigners was then a sentence to death for a Japanese. Manjiro attended the Unitarian church and became very educated about American technical knowledge, an enormous contribution when he eventually returned to Japan. After touring the church and the museum, the group met with local IARF supporters.

Yugi Inokuma in Japan and

Rev. Richard Kellaway in the U.S. led the overall planning, with Ann Fox and Jean Kellaway arranging the Fairhaven visit. A return visit to Japan for the Fall of 2012 is being discussed. ❖
